Course Description

This course is an advanced graduate seminar and intensive reading program on international political economy (IPE). The course highlights important topics such as the intellectual history of IPE as a field of scholarly inquiry, globalization, the global trading system, international migration, global inequality, foreign aid, natural resources and international development, climate change, international security, human rights and political development, and global economic governance. In a nutshell, we study the patterns of power relations, resources, wealth, and political agency across the various empirical issues at the transnational/global level. At the end of the course, students will present the preliminary findings or arguments of their research essay in a form of a research workshop.

Most importantly, the success of this course primarily depends on the student's commitment to invest time on all required readings, active participation during seminar discussions, and careful development of an empirically-driven political science research proposal. This is a seminar course, and the success of each session ultimately depends on the quality of discussions, exchanges, and debates amongst all the participants.

Expected Learning Outcomes

At the end of this course, students are expected to:

1. Gain mastery of the various key debates, concepts, issues, and theories of the political science sub-field (or interdisciplinary field of) international (or global) political economy
2. Formulate an interesting and well-developed research puzzle that is relevant to the key debates in international political economy
3. Develop a well-argued and coherent political science research essay that deals with any relevant themes and issues of international political economy
4. Substantially improve critical reading and writing skills that are necessary in the academic profession
5. Enhance research presentation and oral communication skills

Course Requirements:

1. Research Essay (30%) : one research article (minimum of 7,000 words, maximum of 10,000 words) about any IPE issue. This research essay needs to address a significant topic in contemporary IPE, with a clear research question/puzzle and a logical flow of evidence-based argumentation. A two-page version of this research essay has to be distributed to all class participants by week 10. Submission date: to be decided.

2. Weekly review essays (70%): This is a weekly exercise that is conducted every session, particularly during the first 45 minutes of our three-hour session. A series of “puzzles” (2 or 3) will be given, and students are required to provide their answers in a well-written essay. The puzzles are inspired by the topic and the readings assigned for the session, and the students are expected to critically engage with the session’s readings in writing their responses to the essays. Considering that there are 11 sessions during the term in which substantive readings are assigned, students are expected to produce 11 review essays for the entire term (submitted weekly!).
3. One workshop presentation (weeks 13 and 14) (not graded, but required; failure to fulfill this requirement means a failing grade in the course): Students are required to provide a two-page version of their eventual research essay to all the members of the class by week 12. The seminar presentation schedule and assignments will be confirmed by week 10. During the research workshops, students are required to critically assess their peers’ tentative research essay plan and to provide helpful feedback in improving the analytical rigor of the presented research essay plan. The format of these two sessions will be discussed sometime in weeks 1 and 2 depending.
4. A seminar presentation (45 to 60 minutes) (not graded, but required; failure to fulfill this requirement means failing grade in the course): A group of students (or a student) will be required to lead the seminar discussion for one session. “Leading”, in this case, means that the assigned group/student will provide a thirty-minute presentation of the required readings for the session and an interactive discussion with the class. The presentation requires a summary of the concepts, questions, and issues in the readings (40 minutes minimum) as well as a list of puzzles/suggestions questions for the plenary discussion (15 minutes).
5. Consultation with the professor. All students are required to seek an individual consultation appointment via email (at least once during term period). There are no fixed consultation hours. Instead, students are required to have a 15-minute or so consultation with the course convener during the term; ideally, the consultation has to occur sometime within an hour or so before the class session. Skype meeting is also possible.
6. Schedule of a typical weekly session: (except weeks 1, 13, and 14)
 - a. 6pm-6:50pm: Weekly reaction essay
 - b. 6:50-6:59pm: Break
 - c. 7pm-8pm: Reporting and discussion led by the assigned student(s)
 - d. 8:00-8:05pm; Break
 - e. 8:05pm-9pm: Plenary discussion

Course Policies

1. Student attendance policy is governed by the applicable DLSU Graduate Student Handbook.
2. At the start of the term (or the session), the course lecturer may provide some digital copies of most/if not all of the readings. Ultimately, the student is solely responsible for purchasing or obtaining a copy of all the required readings for the course.
3. Email policy: Please allow me to respond to your email within 48 hours. Your email correspondences have to be sent to both sregilme@niu.edu and santino.regilme@gmail.com. Please see Chris Blattman’s (Columbia University) guide on writing emails to your professors and employers: <http://chrisblattman.com/2010/11/08/students-how-to-email-to-your-professor-employer-and-professional-peers/>. Emails that require longer responses will not be answered; instead, students need to seek an appointment from the course convener at least three days in advance. Inquiries that can be answered by referring to this document will not be answered.

4. Recommendation letters. I can not write recommendation letters for students who do not reach at least a grade of 3.5 in this course, unless you worked for me as a research assistant or intern.
5. An option for graduate research internship. The most promising full-time graduate students, who successfully completed this course with a grade of at least 3.0, have the opportunity to work for me as a research intern. This grade requirement might be waived, and I have the option to offer this opportunity sometime in the middle of the term, when I finally have a preliminary idea of the research aptitude of a potential intern coming from this class. This research internship is unpaid, but it includes an opportunity to undergo hands-on and intensive training on empirical research on international political economy under my mentorship. The minimum internship period is set for three months, with approximately 20 hours per week of workload (negotiable). Please approach me anytime during the term if you are interested.
6. Good writing in the social sciences: Good writers with good ideas are likely to succeed in graduate school, and consequently, in the academic profession (or in many other professions). During the first two weeks of the term, please ensure that you read the following materials:
 - a. Steven Pinker's The Sense of Style Purchase it here: http://www.amazon.com/Sense-Style-Thinking-Persons-Writing/dp/0143127799/ref=asap_bc?ie=UTF8 (It is a must that you read this.)
 - b. Good Writing in Political Science by Henry Farrell http://themonkeycage.org/2010/02/good_writing_in_political_scie/
 - c. Papers in Political Science by Ashley Leeds <http://www.ruf.rice.edu/~leeds/Leedsrespaperguide.pdf>
 - d. How to write an essay by Chris Blattman. <http://chrisblattman.com/2010/02/17/how-to-write-an-essay/>
7. Learn how to use a reference management software. There is a wide variety of options depending on your needs, but a good start would be the following: Papers for Mac or Windows, Zotero, EndNote, and Mendeley. You will thank me forever in case you decide to use one of these programs or other comparable ones as it will make your writing tasks so much easier by efficiently referring to and citing your sources.
8. Consultation with the professor. All students are required to seek an individual consultation appointment via email (at least once during term period). There are no fixed consultation hours. Instead, students are required to make a 15-minute or so consultation with the course convener during the term; ideally, consultation appointments are to be set an hour or so before the class session.
